NEW use for an old picture frame. Paint it a gay colour, line backing with washable paper. Add a ledge midway and to the bottom to hold recipes, cookery book, etc. A prop at the back tilts frame to a convenient angle for reading. Strips of fine elastic across frame keeps right pages open.

LONG curtains finished by a softly draped valance with pleated jabots are delightful for a living-room. They are simple to make too. Start with shaped buckram valance (first experiment with paper to see that the swing and the depth are right for the window). Then cover buckram valance with satin or fabric of your choice. Lay the drapery material on it in whatever number of soft folds appeal. Sew them firmly in place to the back, then line back. Finish with pleated jabot on each side (see sketches right). Lower edges of jabots are cut at a sharp angle of about 30 degrees. Arrange them in soft pleats, about 3 folds to each jabot. Fasten to the under-side of buckram valance. Fix to pelmet board.

shape on a padded surface; cover with damp cloth; steam (do not press) with a warm iron. Remove when dry. Using a darning needle and single strand of wool, overcast back and front sections together, turn under seams and across shoulders. Overcast underarms of sleeves; fit sleeves in armholes and sew in place. Adjust and overcast narrow edge of collar around back neck edge and side edges of front neck-line. Overcast about ¼ in. of each end of collar to top edges of sections forming collar at front, allowing rem. of edges to form V on lapel collar. With contrast binding, bind front edge of right front, outer edge of entire collar and front edge of left front with the long cable st. strip, being careful to adjust strip to lay flat at outer and inner corners of collar. Bind each sleeve edge and curved edge of each pocket with corresponding strips. Arrange a pocket with straight edge about 4 in. from lower edge of jacket at centre of each front, stitch in place across straight edges. Sew buttons opposite buttonholes.
